

Steve McDonald

co-General Manager Software Integrity Group, Corporate Staff

Steve is responsible for leading Synopsys' software security and quality solutions business, which is focused on products and services that ensure the security and improve the quality of all software that is omnipresent in our lives.

Steve joined Synopsys in 2002 as head of IP and system sales. He then drove the sales of software security products and services for the Software Integrity Group as senior vice president of worldwide sales.

Prior to his tenure at Synopsys, Steve served as vice president of sales for Simplex Solutions (public offering in 2001). He started his career in the semiconductor manufacturing (lithography) industry and later spent three years specializing in EDA software tool and cell library development.

Steve has more than 25 years of sales and sales management experience in the electronics industry and is a member of the Institute of Engineering and Technology. He holds a BSEE from the University of Salford, Manchester, England.